Santa Is Visitor At Annual Party Held by A. W. S.

Games and Gifts Feature Program Offered Missoula Youngsters Saturday Afternoon

Associated Women Students held their annual Christmas party for grade school children of Missoula Saturday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock in the women's gymnasium. Approximately three hundred invitations were extended to the poor families in Missoula whose names were obtained from the Federated Social Service society. Buses, furnished by the Larson Transfer company, were sent to the schools throughout the city and brought the children to the University.

Games furnished entertainment during the afternoon. The Missoula Mercantile company donated ice cream cones for the party and the Student Store, tams. Santa Claus, impersonated by Virginia Wilcox, gave each child a cap and a bag of Christmas candy, nuts and fruit.

The committees in charge of the affair as appointed by Helen Huxley, Lewistown, A. W. S. Social Service chairman, were as follows: Invitations—Annie Evans, Roundup, chairman; Eva Lesell, Butte, and Virginia Wilcox, Missoula. Busses—Betty Kelleher, Butte, chairman. Gifts—Helen Kelleher, Stanford, chairman; Juanita Armour, St. Ignatus; Kathryn Howatson, Missoula, and Jeannette Eldering, Myers. Games—First committee, Katherine Rand, Butte, chairman; Margaret Sullivan, Hardin; Phoebe Patterson, Missoula, and Olive Midgett, Bridger. Games—Second committee, Pearl Johnson, Harlowton, chairman; Fanny Warner, Butte; Vivian Bower, Tarkio, and Alice Scheffer, Missoula.

Representatives Asked to Meet Vodvil Manager

Rules, Dates and General Problems Will Be Discussed Early Next Week

Fraternal and sorority are requested to elect or appoint a Varsity Vodvil manager to meet with Dick Shaw, this year's Vodvil manager, to discuss the show. These managers will meet at a convenient time the first of next week, the exact date to be determined later.

At this time rules pertaining to the show will be read, dates of manuscript deadline will be set, and other detailed information will be discussed. The managers are urged to attend the meeting so that the show can get under way the first of the year.

Employment Bureau Is Successful

Students Have Variety of Work; University Engages Half Of Total Employed

Of the approximately five hundred State University students who are engaged in part-time work in Missoula while attending classes, almost half are employed directly by the University, according to information released by Hazel Mumm, student employment secretary.

Work in the Stenographic bureau, Registrar's and Business offices, Physical plant, residence halls, fraternity and sorority houses, and student-assistants to instructors furnish part-time work compensatory in cash, fees and living expenses to nearly two hundred and fifty students.

Several student employment agencies have been set up in the past, but have not proven very effective, due to lack of knowledge and organization on the part of the students and townpeople. This handicap will be overcome, it is believed, by the new method to be installed, which will involve a careful checking of information requested at registration time, contacting the individual when this information has not been completely furnished and an orderly system of record-keeping.

It is estimated that nearly 35 percent of the students attending the University work part time. Women students usually find work for their board and room, or are employed directly by the University as stenographers, telephone girls, workers in residence halls or student-assistants. Men are often found at work in the business district and of course have a better opportunity to obtain odd jobs both off and on the campus.

Lighted Tree Will Exemplify Spirit of Season of University

Although the weather doesn't suggest the Christmas season to those intellectual individuals who throng the campus every day in search of knowledge, the spirit will soon be apparent to all, when, through the efforts of the maintenance department the Christmas tree in front of Main hall is decorated with its multi-colored bulbs.

The first tree was decorated in 1927 through the efforts of Dr. M. J. Elrod and the students. Half the cost of the lights and other accessories was defrayed by the students and the remaining portion by the faculty. The State University supplied the labor and the electricity necessary for the decoration of the tree. When the tradition was first established there were only a few lights and decorations but these articles have been added to from time to time until there are now approximately two hundred and sixty-five lights.

In 1928 an impromptu convocation followed the lighting of the tree when the students and faculty members met to sing carols and to observe the real spirit of Christmas. This custom was carried on for two or three years but was finally abandoned.

In speaking of the decoration of the tree, T. G. Swearingen said: "We hope that the students will visualize the spirit and tradition behind the Christmas tree and refrain from removing lights or otherwise defacing its beauty."

The dramas to be selected will be chosen from the works of leading dramatists, including Sophocles, Euripides, Plautus, Terence, Lope de Vega, Shakespeare, Corneille, Moliere, Racine, Victor Hugo, Goldsmith, Sheridan, Ibsen, Sardou and Oscar Wilde. Total Attendance For 1933 Hi-Jinx Under Last Year

Receipts from Ticket Sales Are Approximately $800, Compared With $871 for 1932

Attendance at the 1933 Hi-Jinx musical revue totaled 1,620 as compared to the 1,637 attendance last year, according to figures revealed yesterday from Peter Meloy, assistant auditor.

The total receipts from ticket sales was approximately $800 as compared to $871 for 1932. Of that amount $600 will be expended for miscellaneous expenses and $85 will be paid for federal tax on the 50 and 75 cent admissions, thus leaving an approximate balance of $150 to be reverted into the A. S. U. M. general fund.

Grace Johnson, Harlowton, was selected as "Miss University" and Jack Coughlin, Conrad, was named "University King" in the contest conducted in connection with the show. They were introduced at both shows.

CONSOLIDATION OF UNIVERSITY UNITS URGED BY WATSON

New Institution Would Be Established at Lewistown, Bill Will State; $2,500,000 May Be Borrowed From Federal R.F.C.; Consolidation Idea Is Not New

Proposing that the six units of the Greater University of Montana be consolidated at "the geographical center of Montana," Representative Arthur H. Watson, Friday filed notice of a bill to that effect which he intends to introduce soon to the House of Representatives. The notice of filing followed by a few days the announcement by the Meagher county representative of such a desire. Encouraged by what he termed "a huge volume" of messages pleading support to such a proposal, Watson outlined a bill, which if passed would locate the University of Montana at Lewistown. The bill, the solon stated, would be brief.

As verbally outlined to the legislative body, the bill would be incorporated within the governor's relief program, which would provide for the procurement of $2,500,000 in federal recovery money for the centralization of the Greater University of Montana. This money would be borrowed from the federal government, under the existing loan agencies provided for in the National Recovery Act.

Provision for Present Plans The bill would further provide for the sale or dismantling of the equipment of the present units and authorize the state board of examiners to effect the consolidation.

Watson, in presenting his arguments to the lower house, said: "For years the various units of the University have been jealous of each other, fighting for appropriations and buildings. We are not through building yet. In fact proposals for new buildings for nearly every unit are before this special session. Within the next twenty or thirty years the savings to the state by having a consolidated University would more than pay for the cost of its establishment and the savings to the taxpayers in the long years during which Montana expects to care for the higher education of its youth would be tremendous."

Legal Status The creation of a centralized university would necessitate expenditure of funds to be borrowed from the federal government for the promotion of a Montana Civil Works program. Governor Cooney, in his proclamation calling the extraordinary session, stressed the necessity for state projects to benefit from federal loans. Though no specific mention was made concerning university consolidation, the question of legality arises. The Montana Kaimin called upon legal authorities to find an answer to this question and received the following statement: "In this state the power of the legislature convened in extraordinary session is more limited than that of the legislature convened in regular session. The constitution of Montana provides that the governor may on extraordinary occasions convene the legislative assembly by proclamation, stating the purposes for which it is convened, but when so convened it shall have no power to legislate on any subjects other than those specified in the proclamation, or which may be recommended by the governor. . . . This provision is mandatory, and the approval by the governor of a statute passed at extraordinary session does not validate it if it relates to a subject not designated in his proclamation or messages."

Courts Allow Liberal Construction "The question is whether the proposed act is germane to a subject specified by the governor, and the courts have taken the position that the governor cannot restrict the details springing from the subject. In deciding this question the proclamation and message should be considered as a whole, and the language should be given its ordinary meaning; in fact, the courts have adopted a rather liberal rule of construction."

"Any opinion as to whether this particular piece of legislation would be valid if passed, would require a careful study of the governor's proclamation calling the special session, and his messages to the legislature convened in compliance therewith."

Asking for Government Aid

Federal aid for education is a problem which colleges and universities throughout the United States are now considering with the view to help needy college students of merit. Dr. Robert C. Clothier, president of Rutgers university, recently commented on the problem asking for state aid for the educational institutions; he did not ask for federal assistance, but the problem is regarded as so grave that no one would have been surprised if he had taken that further step in his petition for social aid.

Clothier has offered sound arguments: "The schools are a bulwark of civilization. They promote the welfare of the community, the commonwealth and the nation. They are not a luxury or an extravagance. In the years of the depression they have borne their share of the necessary retrenchment. The limit has been reached. We can do without many things, but we cannot afford to undermine character and social integrity in the boys and girls who will be directing the affairs of our nation 30 years hence."

"Every educational center in the United States has felt the slump. Financial resources have declined, but the demand upon the schools has increased. Public school systems have broken down due to lack of funds. Normally the states should assume charge. But the states too, are impoverished. It begins to appear that, like national industry, national education needs the assistance of the Federal Government."

President Clapp returned not long ago from Chicago where he attended meetings of the National Association of State Universities. He went to several eastern universities in an effort to further a co-operative movement for needy college students who show exceptional merit.

"Applications for federal aid for students were rejected when they were first made last August but the government has since given evidence of a willingness to reconsider," President Clapp stated.

Throughout the country the question of federal aid for education is exciting considerable comment and the immediate question seems to be whether the loan should be made in the form of a gift, an outright loan or in some form of relief work. Broad training in educational lines is now being urged rather than one specific field of technical training.

Man at the Keyhole

Finals!

This is the last week to prepare for the final exams and it is going to be tough! Midnight oil will burn far into the night as many of us learn a quarter's work in one or two nights.

Here are a few hints for "cribbing": (1) Write a complete set of notes in your hand; (2) if the course is to be outlined, secure a blue book beforehand and then exchange books when the prof is not looking (this is commonly used and more commonly detected); (3) small slips of paper can be easily placed in the cuff of a sweater where they can be read easily; (4) get the "A" student to sit in front of you at an angle so reading over his shoulder will not be difficult; (5) if all of these methods fail, buy your folks a Christmas present that arrives the same time as the grades do.

Seen Through the Keyhole

Kenneth Duff scurrying around the campus in order to keep up his numerous jobs. Eleanor Speaker hugging her way through Hi-Jinx. Jocko Shenk shadow boxing. Walter Brundage nursing a very, very bad toe. Phil Pollard going into a trance. Virginia Crutchfield sleeping soundly while waiting for the finale. Don Harris being the only one in step. Cale Crowley ringing for the elevator. The Gang at 601 Daly laying plans for suing the light company. Erling Oss and Pat Connors figuring out their points for track next spring. The Growler making its debut on the campus. Bill Brown riding around in his new car. P. J. Malone using his daily magic medicine. Grizzly football team not knowing what to do with its spare time. Basketball squad working diligently to stay on the chosen few. The Crowd at the "Grand Premiere" blocking traffic.

Things I Remember

Remember when Fritz Sterling, Missoula, used to visit his sister in South Carolina in 1925?

Well, when he came back to school he revolutionized the afternoon "what-to-do" period by producing a deck of cards that measured 9x6 inches. One naturally wonders just how a deck of cards could change the whole afternoon for a year but it can be easily seen when you hear the story. John Carney, Livingston, the campus gambler at that time, immediately fell in love with this deck of cards, and, with his cronies Gene Meyers, Billings; Force Bailey, Libby; Al Dahlberg, Butte, and Barry Hogarty, Billings, started one of the greatest attractions of many moons. They would meet upstairs in the Student store and play Black-Jack for the drinks (cokes). Then downstairs they would rush with the unlucky loser and make him buy drinks for them all. This kept up all afternoon till they were all broke. The idea finally got tiresome because poor old Barry kept on losing and it finally got so bad that he had a tough time getting tuition. So the master minds got together and inveigled some girls into the games. The heavy losers then were Jake Burns, Helena; Helena Smith, Billings, and Kathryn Andrews, Miles City.

This is a good idea except it seems to us nowadays the "collegial gals" know too d—much about gambling! Next time I'll tell you about the time Don Cornell ran around the Oval in his B. V. D's.

MORRIS H. MCCOLLUM

Listen my children and you shall hear some more of this silly story here.

We left off last time in the Castle. Now ladies and gentlemen if you look closely you can see an eaves-dropper listening to all we say but never mind that we shall go on—This animal, whenever he is frightened screams excitedly—eck-eeek!—and here folks you can get a glimpse of the American Farmer trying to get relief from the Government—To get in the next show a small fee will be charged—You say your little son is lost, what is his name?—what?—Fritz?—I know but Fitzhugh!—Lady please get away from that cave you will get your foot in it—And here we have the great African story teller—the more applause he gets, the Fowler he gets—Hark!—listen to the Arab horses Gallup around the arena for your entertainment—If you will wait, one of them will come out of the Gates and you may inspect him—Stand back—

Independents Win Annual Swim Meet

Champions End Season With No Defeats; Two More Tests Are Scheduled

With the interfraternity swimming tourney on its last legs and the Independents having the title safely in hand, four meets were staged last week, Sigma Alpha Epsilon taking two, and the Independents and Phi Delt taking one apiece. S. A. E. romped to two victories, defeating the Sigma Nu team, 31-12, Friday evening, and beating the Sigma Chis, 27-17 last night. The Independents won from the Sigma Phi Epsilon squad, 32-12, and Phi Delta Theta defeated the S. P. E.'s by default.

In two meets, McArthur starred for the S. A. E. team, taking the 40-yard and 80-yard free style races against both the Sigma Nus and Sigma Chis. In addition to these victories, he swam two laps of the relay against the Sigma Chi team. Roskie's first place in the 80-yard backstroke was the only first garnered by the Sigma Chis, Hawkins and Garvey taking seconds to win points for their team. Hennings was again a one-man team as he did most of the point-gathering to lead the Independents in their 32-12 defeat of the S. P. E. team. Davis garnered the only first place for the losers, winning the 80-yard backstroke.

The Independents now have virtually a cinch on the Interfraternity title, having won all of their meets. The S. A. E.'s are in second place with four victories and one defeat, and one meet to enter. Phi Delt and Phi Sig are tied with three victories and two defeats. Sigma Chi has two and three, while Sigma Nu and S. P. E. are at the end of the league.

Two meets remain on the schedule, having been postponed last week due to Hi-Jinx rehearsals. S. A. E. meets Phi Sigma Kappa, and Phi Delta Theta faces Sigma Chi, both teams being scheduled for 4:45 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Next quarter, men who have completed this season will hold an intramural meet to decide the individual championships in the various events. Minor Sports Manager Marion McCarty will pick the best talent in these races for the 1934 State University swimming team which may engage in meets with the State College and possibly schools of the Pacific Coast conference. A good team is anticipated because some of the times turned in by swimmers in the interfraternity meet compare favorably with the state records in those events.

Coach Lewandowski and his Grizzly basketball squad are now holding the sports limelight and will furnish the center of attraction during the winter quarter. Lew has nine lettermen and five frosh numeral winners from last year around which to build his squad.

Last year the Grizzlies won seven games and lost nine. They split the series with the College of Idaho, School of Mines, State College Bobcats; defeated Whitman college, Polson Independents, Meiji University of Japan; and lost a pair to Ellensburg Normal, one each to Idaho, House of David and Carroll college.

The Grizzlies piled up 668 points against their opponents' 703, or an average of 41.75 points a game against their opponents' 43.93. Better things can be expected this year as Coach Lewandowski has had a year to work with his team. He lost only one man of last year's squad through graduation, that one being Dale Hinman, big guard. Fox and McDonald, two other lettermen, did not return to school.

The Grizzly lettermen include Jimmy Brown, a veteran from last year, who was one of the leading scorers on the 1933 quint; Bill Erickson, playing his last year as forward for the Grizzlies, and Al Dahlberg, veteran center and guard who is a two-letterman. These men hail from Butte where they played basketball under "Swede" Dahlberg, a former Grizzly.

Others are Dave Fitzgerald, Livingston, alternate forward playing his last year of competition and a two-letterman; Al Heller, a shifty center and letterman from Twin Bridges; Don Holloway, Townsend, playing his second year at guard; Bill Hileman, a strong and shifty second-year guard from Whitefish; Naseby Rhinehart, a powerful guard from Milwaukee, playing his second year, and Lewis Steensland, a letterman from Big Timber.

Other members of the 1934 squad who will be trying for positions on the team are Bergquist, Brandenburg, Davison, Avery and Blastic, 1933 freshman numeral men; Sayatovich, Stansberry, George Kuka, Story, Flanagan, Reynolds, Cushman, Roberts, Malone, Meyers, Moe, Castles, Wheaton, Bischoff, Daigle, Smith, LaCasse and Honnald.

The Grizzlies will open their season with a game against the Polson Independents, led by Ernest Retz, former Intermountain player. A holiday trip will take the Grizzlies to Helena to play the Helena Independents, led by Fox and Lyman, former Grizzlies, and the Great Falls Independents.

Home games this season include contests with the School of Mines, State College Bobcats, House of David, Olsen's Terrible Swedes and a possible game here with the University of British Columbia.

Lots of talent is being uncovered this year in the interfraternity swimming meets. The Independents are at the head of the team list having waded through the opponents. Some of the best swimmers that have shown their wares in competition are Hennings and LaCasse, Independents; McArthur and Angland, S. A. E.; Bell, Phi Sigma Kappa; Garvey and Hawk-

Associated Press Makes All-State Team Selections

Eight Grizzlies, Three Bobcats, One Miner Picked on Annual Mythical Eleven

Reflecting the State University's supremacy in Montana football circles, the annual Associated Press selection of an all-state team gives the Grizzly school eight places on the first team, and six positions on the second team, reversing a preceding selection made by the Montana Standard which gave an even break to the State College and other schools. The A. P. team is based on selections of the leading coaches and sports writers in Montana.

Bob Stansberry and Henry Blastic obtained the most votes for the backfield posts, while Hileman's blocking won him a place at right half. Erick Erickson of the School of Mines was given the post of quarterback for the second time in two years, narrowly defeating Cal Emery of the Grizzlies by one vote.

The first team was composed of eight Grizzlies, two Bobcats and one Miner, while the second team was made up of six Grizzlies, three Bobcats, one Miner and one from Intermountain.

With these men as a nucleus and a few others who would turn out for such a proposal, the State University could muster a good swimming team that should be able to show up well against many of the other colleges of Montana and the Pacific Coast.

Until last year, the swimming meet between the University and the State College was an annual affair. It was abandoned last year due to low finances, but should be resumed this season.

When the swimming schedule is completed, there will be few athletics for the students until next quarter when an interfraternity basketball schedule, inter-company basketball for R. O. T. C. students, and inter-class basketball will compete with bowling and the M club tournament for first place among the sports.

First Riflery Match Has Large Turnout

Bruce, Austin, Leslie Win Honors In Re-entry Contest

A large turnout from city, Fort and campus was present at the first re-entry match to be fired on the new R. O. T. C. range. About fifty marksmen were present and the scores for the group ran generally high, according to those in charge of the firing.

Sixty-six targets were fired by the group and of this number Ray Bruce, A. C. Austin, George Leslie and F. E. Duvall turned in perfect scores of 100 each. These men were placed on the firing line and the tie was decided by shoulder to shoulder firing in which Bruce won first place, Austin, second and Leslie, third honors.

"The match was a decided success and everyone was enthusiastic about the new R. O. T. C. range," declared Captain A. E. Rothermich when commenting on the contest.

The next re-entry match will be fired December 21, 1933 beginning at 7 o'clock in the R. O. T. C. range in either the sitting or kneeling position.

Watson Proposes Unit Centralization legislature. Soon after the establishment of the four original units at Bozeman, Missoula, Butte and Dillon, the legislature created the office of Chancellor of the University during its 1913 assemblage. Before this bill became effective Edwin B. Craighead, then president of the State University, initiated a measure for consolidation of the units at a central point. This was voted upon by the electorate of the state at the 1914 general elections and defeated. The city of Great Falls at that time offered to the state ample ground for the establishment of the Greater University of Montana there.

Many stirring debates are recalled by early Montana residents during the first legislative consideration of a university. Extreme jealousy between the several sections of the state was created as each section endeavored to secure some branch of the University. That sectional strife continued until the Normal School at Billings was provided for in 1927 and the Northern Montana College was opened at Havre in 1929. At the last regular session of the legislature, a bill was passed abandoning the office of Chancellorship but vetoed by the then governor, now Senator Erickson. In an endeavor to inflict opposition to the bill, Melvin A. Brannon, chancellor, resigned. The position has been filled by the appointment of H. H. Swain, executive secretary.

Some observers indicate the renewal of political strife in future deliberations concerning the Greater University of Montana.

About Hi-Jinx

Hi-Jinx of 1933 was a mess. Somebody in the audience remarked that it struck a new low in student performance, with which we don't quite agree because once in a while some bright spot woke us up. Maybe it was lack of time in the preparation—maybe it was lack of co-operation in the production, but we certainly sniffed an Ethiopian and we don't think it was the director. Sometimes it was just lack of good taste in the introduction of impromptu lines and occasional scenes, many of which were crude without the good grace of being funny. For instance, it's hardly necessary to give the University a black eye among townspeople by employing galled crooks with which to carry across the humor.

The student-written songs proved that talent can be extracted from the campus—Martha Kimball's "He's My Only" starring, "A Stranger Interlude" was clever, as was "The Play's the Thing," and Ellen Miller, with her gratifying interpretation of the adonidal Mae West. In fact the whole cast of "Dictator" made the most of the act, along with the chorus that followed. The "Hot Cha" chorus was good and managed to work in a professional touch by missing only one step in both shows, and "The Bowery Tongs" were smooth. We liked Janice Koppe's singing and would have liked her dancing in another costume. (Or was it a chemise?) Her "Campus Kickers" (also garbed in some shrunken number which apparently originated in the boudoir) should have been trained to use their hands as well as their feet. "Cubancula" lacked the natural rhythm of the tango to say nothing of its grace.

"A Little Gray Matter" needed a little more—the way the exceptional idea was worked out was unfortunate. Kai Heiberg as the professor was good in spite of the influence of environment. "Poor Annie" was entertaining and well executed in spite of too many choruses, and "Drama!" except for Mildred McDonald, was just plain executed. "The Great Zeek," "The Cure" and "Breakfast Time" were putrid, as was "Business in Q." All through the show the orchestra went out of its way to prove it hadn't practiced with the cast.

Our main impression of the whole thing was a series of Whittinghill gestures interspersed with other indiscretions.

Barnes in Bavaria

Graduate Causes Sensation When He Claims to Be a Barber in Oberammergau

It is said that there are few undeveloped fields in any profession but Curtis Barnes, '33, who is now touring Europe, found a second heaven for those members of the tonsorial profession in the village of Oberammergau, which is famous for its production of the Passion Play. According to word received from Barnes, "all the men in the village have long hair and beards which prompted me to tell them that I was a barber in America, and that caused a sensation, believe me."

Barnes stayed in Partenkirchen, Bavaria, for some time and while there he took short excursions to various places of interest in that section of the country. The following remarks are excerpts from Barnes' letter:

"While I was in Partenkirchen I took a trip on one of the mountain cog railroads called the Zugspitz. The last three miles of track were built through a tunnel of solid rock. The station is a massive modern stone structure which is perched on the edge of a cliff and from that point all the skiers and mountain climbers ascend. "Alps and Alps, snow covered of course, and crosses and monks. I looked like hell for a St. Bernard with a keg of brandy around his neck but I didn't see one.

"The rest of the way to the summit is by aerial cable car and is some ride. The tower on the summit lets you see Alps everywhere and when there are no clouds in valley below you can see towns in Germany and Austria. You can also see the Swiss Alps, but what the hell, the Alps are grand and that's that.

"The next day we went on a long tour through some churches and castles. No fooling, it is certainly marvelous. They are the most beautiful structures that I have ever seen.

"On the way home we went through Oberammergau. I stopped in and saw the Passion Play theater. It seats about five thousand people and the stage is wonderful. We also went up to Alois Lange's wood-carving shop. He's the man who played the part of Christ in 1930. I was the only person in our party of four who spoke English and imagine my surprise when he spoke English to me. He is very unassuming and nice but not so dumb, as he gets an outrageous price for his wood-carvings. In Partenkirchen, where I was living, the wood-carving was just as good and did not cost nearly as much.

"When I returned to Partenkirchen I met an American artist at the pension where I was located. He was so glad to hear English spoken that he almost wept. I became his friend for life by offering him some of my Edgeworth tobacco.

"Partenkirchen is the prettiest place that I've ever seen in all my life. The peasants here wear short trousers, Tyrolean hats and embroidered shirts. The landscape looks just like those damn calendar pictures.

"Tomorrow I'm going on to Venice, Florence and then on to Rome. Give my best regards to all."
